

Bold styling, the highest level of refinement in design, performance and luxury... she could only be the Portofino.

Her cockpit is designed to carry passengers in safety and comfort while underway, and to function as an elaborate split-level entertainment area when at anchor. Seating faces in every direction; a wet bar with an ice maker is available.

Your way below is brightened by automatic entry lighting. In the exciting main salon, you are greeted by the subtle atmospheric colors of the changing sky and distant walls of the Grand Canyon.

An entertainment center with a television and stereo system is standard; a VCR may be added. Another guest stateroom is located just forward on the starboard side. Hidden wall dividers transform this area into a generous double stateroom.

The galley assumes home-like proportions and has standard amenities like a refrigerator, sink, microwave and a host of available options.

The forward owner's stateroom, in keeping with the rest of the Portofino's appointments, is a luxurious haven. Here you will find a full-size island berth, lighted vanity with a swing-away cushioned seat, and a door which conceals the air conditioning controls and an optional color TV. The hanging locker lights automatically when opened. A private entrance admits you to the nearby head, which features a tile floor, separate shower, sink and an electric toilet.

The Portofino is a craft that challenges all accepted standards in design, performance and luxury—in other words, perfectly suited to meet your expectations.
